Reflections

Dimly through the mirror of time
I look back and faintly see
Reflections of friends and halls back then
And wish for life the way it used to be.

Gone are times when often we Walked side by side in the mass
Laughing, racing through those halls
Reflecting images of hopes and dreams. . . and class.

More clearly in the mirror I see
Reflected now, not then, my face
And wonder about time past
Time that now I can only dimly trace.
